In this time of unprecedented collective emergency, it has been too easy for us to put aside the fate of those who are living out the pandemic in a foreign land, often in situations of unimaginable hardship. Millions of migrant workers across the world have found themselves trapped with no way to return home safely. From Myanmar to Mozambique, from Venezuela to Nigeria, entire communities have been forced to flee violence, conflict, and severe economic distress.

Safety, when it can be found, often comes at a heavy price. At a rate unprecedented in our times, refugees are being increasingly condemned to a lifetime in camps that were only ever supposed to be a stopping point on their journey towards freedom from fear and persecution. This situation is only being made worse by draconian restrictions on mobility and widespread border closures that may well continue even after the health risks associated with COVID-19 are lessened.

And the unequal rollout of the vaccine at a time when the burden of disease and death is falling heavily on poorer countries does not bode well for migrants and refugees. According to the UN Refugee Agency, UNHCR, out of 157 countries currently developing national COVID-19 vaccination plans, 124 (79%) have committed to include refugees and 31 are already doing so. This is a good start, but it is not enough. Governments and the international community must do all they can to protect those who are so vulnerable.

The International Catholic Migration Commission has experienced a difficult year. Our own operating capacity has been constrained in myriad ways at a time when funding cuts for the critical humanitarian work of refugee resettlement and support to migrants and refugees are becoming deeper and more common. Despite these limitations, solid progress has been made over the course of the year in reshaping ICMC to ensure its long-term prosperity. In that regard I must express my deep appreciation to fellow members of its Governing Committee who have worked unsparingly with General Secretariat colleagues to build a strong and sustainable future for ICMC.

In working to address the many challenges that lie ahead, we must resolve to keep front and center our core obligation to serve the world’s migrants and refugees. As the Holy Father reminds* us: “This is not a time for forgetfulness. The crisis we are facing should not make us forget the many other crises that bring suffering to so many people.”

* Pope Francis, Urbi et Orbi Message, 12 April 2020.
Fulfilling Our Mission in a Year Like No Other

Msgr. Robert J. Vitillo
Secretary General

At the beginning of 2020, we at the International Catholic Migration Commission were intent on the goals we had set for the year and hoped that our efforts would be effective in serving those forced to leave their homes in search of freedom from persecution, safety from war and conflict, or decent work to overcome abject poverty or the threat of human trafficking. Little did we — as everybody else — know that our hopes and dreams, together with those of the people we serve, would be sorely threatened by a pandemic that stopped many daily activities previously considered routine throughout the world.

Despite the serious risks posed by COVID-19, ICMC greatly benefitted during 2020 from the grace of God, as it was able to count on the determination of our staff and volunteers, the support of our national member Episcopal Conferences, partner Catholic-inspired organizations, and other faith-based and civil society groups, as well as the loyal and sensitive accompaniment of our institutional and private donors, the wise counsel of our Governing Committee, and, most of all, the resilience and strength of the migrants and refugees themselves. Thus, as this report shows, ICMC succeeded in maintaining its services to assure safety and protection for migrants and refugees, as well as its advocacy for just policies that open new futures to uprooted people in all parts of the world.

Creativity and flexibility were the key operative words as we adapted to travel restrictions, lockdowns, and other challenges to directly accompanying people on the move or meeting government officials and policymakers. We prioritized the safety of our beneficiaries and staff by purchasing personal protective equipment and adapting workspaces to allow for social distancing. When public health authorities restricted our in-person contact with people served by our programs, we shifted to interviewing, counselling, and informing them remotely. At headquarters, most staff worked from home while a few assured a daily presence to respond to emergencies in the field.

Amid these challenges, we continued a year-long strategic review of the organization to assure its future sustainability, quality, and effectiveness in a time when many non-governmental organizations are experiencing financial challenges.

In 2020, ICMC experienced the vulnerability and frailty that is the daily reality of migrants and refugees and truly learned the lesson so boldly and wisely preached* by Pope Francis: “Like the disciples in the Gospel we were caught off guard by an unexpected, turbulent storm. We have realized that we are on the same boat, all of us fragile and disoriented, but at the same time important and needed, all of us called to row together, each of us in need of comforting the other.”

ENSURING HEALTH IN PANDEMIC TIMES

In northwestern Pakistan, ICMC provided vital healthcare for nearly 86,500 refugees. More than 2,500 pregnant women received antenatal care, and ICMC supported nearly 3,500 deliveries. ICMC Pakistan facilitated health education sessions with more than 16,300 people. As the pandemic worsened, ICMC provided information about the coronavirus and supported the set-up of a COVID-19 intensive care unit in Buner district. In Islamabad and Punjab province, ICMC provided 1,320 medical treatments to refugees. In Jordan, ICMC promoted COVID-19 safety and prevention.

MEETING ESSENTIAL NEEDS

Cash assistance from ICMC Jordan allowed vulnerable families to pay rent, meet urgent needs, and ready living spaces for winter, and reduce or avoid debt. A pandemic cash assistance project supported over 915 families. In Islamabad and Punjab province, ICMC Pakistan provided financial assistance to 29 extremely vulnerable Afghan refugee families, while the ICMC youth center in Hassan Abdal organized refugee community donations for at-risk households. ICMC's assisted over 19,650 children in Pakistan's Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province with schooling and supplies. In Islamabad and Punjab province, ICMC helped to enroll children in school and cover related costs. ICMC enhanced its work in response to the pandemic, including incentive pay for teachers. The ICMC urban hub in Rawalpindi-Islamabad oriented more than 125 students for upcoming courses.

LAYING A SUSTAINABLE FOUNDATION

In Islamabad and Punjab province, ICMC Pakistan offered refugees language and skill development courses, livelihood counselling sessions, and entrepreneurial training. In Jordan, 200 students from refugee and host communities graduated from ICMC vocational training in one of seven trades. More than 700 took Arabic or English literacy classes. A total of 22 Rohingya refugee women completed ICMC Malaysia’s new livelihood trainings on hand sanitizer production and basic childcare. ICMC also offered two levels of English literacy classes.

ICMC provided essential services, including healthcare and education, to help refugees meet basic needs in the face of the global pandemic and lay a foundation for a more sustainable future.

ICMC members and partners came together to give life-saving support to migrants across India following a national COVID-19 lockdown imposed with only hours’ notice.

Tens of millions of migrant workers lost their livelihood overnight, says Sr. Rani Punnaseril HCM, Secretary to the Catholic Bishops’ Conference of India’s (CBCI) Commission for Migrants North Region. They were left without food or shelter, stranded up to thousands of kilometers from their home villages.

The Conference of Catholic Bishops of India (CCBI), with the Archdiocese of Delhi, provided food to stranded migrants and helped to feed over 50,000 people in some seven weeks’ time, as well as advocating for migrants’ access to food rations.

The Jesuit-run Indian Social Institute assisted migrant families to access government support and retain housing.

PROTECTING CHILDREN AT RISK

Over 6,125 refugee children safely played and learned in ICMC Jordan’s child-friendly spaces. ICMC expanded work to prevent child marriage, with life-skills courses for some 195 girls from refugee and host communities, and awareness-raising training for community leaders.

In Pakistan, ICMC trained over 50 refugee and host community youth in leadership skills in Hassan Abdal and offered activities for children from refugee and host communities in Rawalpindi-Islamabad.

In December, ICMC introduced its new Child Safeguarding Policy to ensure heightened protection for children’s rights and well-being.

HOLISTIC SUPPORT FOR HIGHLY VULNERABLE GROUPS

ICMC adapted protection services to respond safely to sexual and gender-based violence (SGBV) and provide further psychosocial support.

ICMC Jordan’s protection centers raised awareness among 4,330 refugee and host community members about preventing violence. ICMC trained over 30 men and boys to work for gender equality, provided psychosocial counseling to 300 adults and children, and addressed COVID-related stress.

ICMC Malaysia assisted nearly 2,200 vulnerable refugees through its SGBV response, including case management support for some 300 survivors. A total of 115 survivors and their children found refuge at a safe shelter. ICMC expanded its material assistance services for highly vulnerable survivors and their children and offered counseling and play therapy to 144 SGBV survivors and their children.

ICMC’s Refugee Protection Corps of 14 women and 4 men created videos to raise awareness about SGBV among more than 1,300 refugees. Corps members trained more than 40 refugees as SGBV focal points and nearly 60 educational staff in child safety.

ICMC Pakistan conducted over 1,100 counselling and psychosocial interventions for refugees and re-opened a safe shelter with essential services. In Rawalpindi-Islamabad, ICMC offered counseling sessions for vulnerable adults and community sessions on protection-related topics such as gender-based violence.
A PASSPORT TO LIFE FOR MIGRANT CHILDREN

“A birth certificate is a passport to life,” says Sister Maria de Lurdes Lodi Rissini of the Southern African Catholic Bishops’ Conference’s (SACBC) Pastoral Care for Migrants and Refugees. Without birth registration, a child cannot access health, education, and protection. The most vulnerable are children born to undocumented migrants.

In 2020, SACBC urged governments to protect all children by registering births “irrespective of nationality or legal status of parents.” The 10 August statement for African Civil Registration and Vital Statistics Day called States to strengthen vital documentation systems to close gaps in protection and prevent statelessness. The bishops insisted such access must include migrants and refugees because “they, too, carry the same intrinsic human dignity like everyone else.”

PATHWAYS TO A HOPE-FILLED FUTURE

Despite pandemic restrictions, the ICMC Resettlement Support Center facilitated long-term solutions for refugees living in Turkey and Lebanon, continuing a long-standing partnership with the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program. ICMC staff provided case management assistance, medical screening, and pre-departure cultural orientation sessions via remote platforms, helping the United States to resettle 695 forcibly displaced people.

ICMC continued operating the European Asylum Support Office (EASO) Resettlement Support Facility in Istanbul. This partnership allows EASO to assist EU Member States and non-EU-member countries in Europe as they offer refugees a chance to begin anew. ICMC supported resettlement missions from four countries in Europe and facilitated resettlement activities for over 1,050 refugees.

EQUIPPING EU MEMBER STATES FOR RESETTLEMENT

Through the EU-FRANK project, ICMC Europe helped strengthen the capacity of EU Member States to offer refugees international protection via resettlement. ICMC Europe was a lead facilitator of the project’s practitioner network on pre-departure orientation. The peer learning space supported EU Member States to create or expand programs to ease refugees’ transition to a new country. ICMC Europe organized workshops on cultural orientation and study visits to the ICMC-run EASO Resettlement Support Facility in Istanbul.

PROMOTING INTEGRATION IN EUROPE

ICMC Europe partnered with the SHARE Network, which promotes refugee resettlement in local communities, to help shape the European Commission’s new action plan on integration. The NGOs urged engaging both newcomers and host communities in the process.

WELCOMING REFUGEES IN COVID TIMES

A pioneer in the Canadian government’s private refugee sponsorship program, the Diocese of London (Ontario) has welcomed nearly 1,675 forcibly displaced people over the past five years—a part of resettlement efforts promoted by the Catholic Bishops’ Conference of Canada.

In 2020, the Diocese moved to virtual platforms to complete 300 sponsorship applications and offer refugees emotional support amidst the pandemic. Staff also ensured that new arrivals had information and necessities for the required quarantine.

The Diocese’s inland support unit provided virtual orientation sessions and food, grocery vouchers, and COVID-19 essentials. Funds for refurbished laptops helped refugees access online services.

“Not responding or delaying help was simply not an option,” says Claire Roque, inland services specialist.

ADVOCACY

Drawing on its experience on the ground, and together with partners, ICMC raised its voice in global and regional forums for policies to protect the safety, rights, and dignity of migrants and forcibly displaced people, at increased risk in the COVID-19 pandemic era.

ADAPTING MIGRATION POLICY TO PANDEMIC REALITIES

During a review of action taken on the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly, and Regular Migration, ICMC stressed the need for implementation to adapt to pandemic realities. ICMC called for access to services for all migrants, expanded regular migration pathways, and alternatives to detention.

PROTECTING THOSE SEEKING REFUGE

ICMC advocated for stronger action by EU Member States to protect vulnerable asylum seekers along the Greek-Turkish border. On World Refugee Day, ICMC and other faith-based organizations highlighted the precarious situation of internally displaced persons and the need for better protection. Regarding climate change-related displacement, ICMC urged more global cooperation in response.

CHILDREN ON THE MOVE

ICMC noted how COVID-19 was a chance for a reset on protecting forcibly displaced children, especially unaccompanied minors. ICMC urged governments to act in the best interests of the child and ensure that children are not at increased risk of violence or barriers to education because of the pandemic. ICMC advocated for ending child detention and facilitating family reunification.

SAFETY, RIGHTS, DIGNITY IN EUROPE

As the pandemic spread, ICMC Europe and other NGOs called EU governments to urgently relocate unaccompanied migrant children living in dangerous conditions in Greek island reception camps. They urged prioritizing family reunification and criticized ongoing human rights violations.

ICMC Europe advocated for better protection of seasonal migrant workers in the agri-food industry. In September, ICMC Europe joined a call for the EU to revive refugee resettlement, on hold due to the pandemic.

ICMC Europe urged a rights-based approach for the new EU Pact on Migration and Asylum, including expanded regular admission pathways and access to housing, work, and social assistance. The NGOs advocated for fairer responsibility-sharing for refugees and migrants among EU Member States.
In 2020, the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) advocated for humane U.S. migration policies. USCCB welcomed a January court ruling strengthening the possibility to resettle refugees. In late February, USCCB urged continuing the 40-year-old U.S. Refugee Admissions Program and highlighted the contributions of resettled refugees. Following a temporary immigration stop in late April, USCCB stressed the need for a pandemic response rooted in unity, with immigrants as partners in economic recovery. The bishops called for better protection of migrant farmworkers, particularly given heightened pandemic vulnerability. “To defeat the virus, no one must be left out.” In late August, USCCB co-signed an appeal for a return to historic refugee admission levels in 2021, noting refugees’ vital role as frontline workers.

In March, ICMC, with 100+ NGOs, called for a global, systematic humanitarian response to COVID-19 rooted in the right to health regardless of migration status.

In August, ICMC, with the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops and 180+ organizations, urged the U.S. Administration to bring refugee resettlement back to historic levels in 2021.

In September, ICMC took up UNHCR’s invitation to serve on the global refugee agency’s reference group on resettlement and complementary pathways for its 8-month mandate.

At a Congressional hearing, the Head of ICMC’s U.S. Liaison Office highlighted the role of faith-based organizations in combating human trafficking and protecting survivors.

In May, the ICMC Secretary General co-signed an open letter from academics and health experts demanding universal access to COVID-19 vaccines by putting them in the public domain.

Following the Moria fire, ICMC Europe and 70 NGOs reiterated a call for swift action to protect and relocate asylum seekers living in EU hotspots on the Aegean islands.

ICMC recommended to the International Organization for Migration’s Council that States support family reunification and strengthen data-gathering for better child protection policies.

CIVIL SOCIETY COORDINATION

ICMC coordinated civil society advocacy on the global stage to promote rights-based governance of migration, with a call to reorient policy and practice in the COVID era toward non-discrimination and protection of migrants.

IMPLEMENTING RIGHTS-BASED POLICY

In 2020, ICMC-coordinated civil society advocacy called for pandemic response and recovery to include migrants and refugees. ICMC urged a focus on building back differently to address systemic gaps and discrimination.

On 7 April, the Civil Society Action Committee, co-convened by ICMC, together with 300 NGOs, appealed to government at all levels to protect uprooted people and recognize their role as essential workers. Advocating for solidarity, the statement “First, Save Lives!” included good practice examples.

In June, an Action Committee report mapped out civil society work to promote implementation of the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly, and Regular Migration (GCM). A webinar series reviewed progress on each of the GCM’s 23 objectives.

In December, the Action Committee published a foundational document on GCM implementation in the COVID-19 era. The paper urges a focus on better lives and sustainable futures by expanding regular pathways and increasing global cooperation.

BUILDING BACK BETTER FOR MIGRANTS

ICMC coordinated civil society engagement in the Global Forum on Migration and Development (GFMD) in 2020, including in working groups on narratives and COVID-19. At two “Friends of the Forum” meetings, ICMC served as civil society spokesperson and stressed the importance of the GFMD for partnerships and inclusive pandemic responses.

ICMC facilitated civil society input in the lead-up to the 13th GFMD Summit in early 2021. ICMC organized the Civil Society Preparatory Meeting, which identified advocacy priorities for the Summit, including social protection, regular migration pathways, fighting xenophobia, and access to services.

ICMC also coordinated civil society action during the Summit. A networking session with governments highlighted advocacy priorities as vital elements in global pandemic recovery, and a side event addressed wage theft. Civil society stressed the GFMD’s crucial role in ensuring that migrants are not left behind in the pandemic era.
WORKING TOGETHER IN AN ERA OF CHANGE

The 13th Global Forum for Migration and Development (GFMD) Summit was about designing changes in a time of epochal change, says Father Fabio Baggio, Under-Secretary of the Vatican’s Migrants and Refugees (M&R) Section and part of the Holy See’s official GFMD delegation.

The disastrous impact of COVID-19 on migrant workers was a Summit topic of concern for the M&R Section, which had been hearing from Catholic-inspired organizations — stories of migrants losing their jobs, being forced to repatriate, being denied social assistance. Stories revealing broken economic and social systems.

For the M&R Section, the multilateral GFMD is an opportunity to “discuss together how to implement the Global Compact [on Migration]” and ensure that all people including migrants and refugees can develop as integral human beings.

CAPACITY BUILDING & RESEARCH

ICMC played a leading role in identifying strategies for a decent, dignified world of work, and in designing pathways to harness labor migration for development and to integrate migrant trafficking survivors.

MIGRATION AND DEVELOPMENT IN WEST AFRICA

ICMC Europe co-launched nine roadmaps to advance achievement of migration-related Sustainable Development Goals in six West African countries. As the culmination of the MADE West Africa program coordinated by ICMC Europe, the plans represent concrete steps to involve all of society in “leaving no one behind.”

The roadmaps aim to harness the benefits of intra-regional migration for development in Ghana and Sierra Leone, improve protection of workers’ rights in Guinea and Senegal, and strengthen diaspora contributions to development in Burkina Faso, Ghana, Sierra Leone, and Togo. A regional roadmap integrates program learnings to guide pandemic recovery.

FOR A CARING WORLD OF WORK

The ICMC-coordinated project The Future of Work, Labour After Laudato Si concluded three years of research on labor market trends and migration. ICMC co-produced the outcomes report Care Is Work, Work Is Care, which links decent work to care for our common home. ICMC facilitated an outcomes webinar that highlighted the need for global communities of transformation.

ICMC published findings of project research it coordinated on jobs, demography, and migration. The report Towards a Better World presents perspectives, research, and Catholic- and faith-inspired best practices, and explores the pandemic’s impact on migration. The photojournalism book Driven by the Depth of Love puts a human face on migration, with portraits of migrants and their journeys.

PATHWAYS TO INTEGRATION

ICMC Europe and partners ended the Right Way research project by publishing tools to support integration of survivors of sex trafficking in Europe. A person-centered handbook for migrants and host communities looks at survivor experiences, recommended support, and best practices. An online tool aids in the journey to autonomy.

ICMC Europe co-organized a project webinar, which urged that integration be tailored to survivors’ needs and build relationships of trust. Right Way offers an anti-trafficking approach that aims to break cycles of violence.
FORMING IMMIGRANT LEADERS

U.S. Catholic Hispanic immigrant communities are growing fast but are under served due to a lack of priests and religious.

In 2008, the Archdiocese of Chicago, which has 130 parishes with Hispanic congregations, launched Pastoral Migratoria to train immigrants as community lay leaders. Based on Catholic Social Teaching, the six-week curriculum links to issues facing immigrant communities. Its graduates accompany immigrant families, lead workshops and provide information, and work for systemic change.

In 2020, the program taught immigrant leaders to use digital tools to offer communities pastoral care, a meeting space, and information sessions.

Pastoral Migratoria has trained more than 200 Hispanic leaders in 40 parishes and has started national pilot project including an annual training institute.
DEPLOYMENT OF EXPERTS

Through the deployment of 200 qualified personnel despite pandemic restrictions, ICMC supported UN humanitarian agencies and governments in providing vital protection and resettlement services for uprooted people around the globe.

ICMC personnel shifted to remote interviewing procedures to assess refugees’ resettlement claims. They advocated with resettlement States for more flexible processing to ensure that resettlement quotas were maintained. ICMC experts submitted the cases of 24,416 refugees for consideration for resettlement to third countries, strengthening UNHCR referral capacity during the pandemic.

The deployment of experts in child protection, refugee status determination, complementary admission pathways, and the prevention of sexual and gender-based violence provided further vital support.

STRENGTHENING UNICEF’S CHILD PROTECTION CAPACITY

In 2020, ICMC launched a deployment partnership with UNICEF to provide rapid, vital help for children, women, and families caught in humanitarian disasters. Through this arrangement, ICMC is deploying experts in child protection, psychological support, and the prevention of gender-based violence to UNICEF operations worldwide.

ICMC sent its first expert under the agreement to assist UNICEF’s operation in Libya, where political instability and armed conflict has uprooted children and families. The pandemic has increased the risk of violence, exploitation, and abuse for some 47,000 migrant and refugee children in the destination and transit country. Based in Tunis, Tunisia, this ICMC expert coordinated and enhanced child protection efforts to ensure that children could not only survive but also thrive.

PROTECTING REFUGEES IN A COVID ERA

In 2020, the COVID-19 pandemic created a complex context for the ICMC Deployment Scheme, which for 20 years has sent ICMC experts in refugee settlement and protection to support field operations of the UN Refugee Agency.

Despite lockdowns and travel bans, ICMC responded to resettlement needs worldwide, in partnership with UNHCR and the Canadian government. ICMC deployed 82 experts to field operations in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East and Northern Africa (MENA). It maintained a roster of 507 experts, allowing it to react rapidly to evolving needs.

INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION IN GREECE

In 2020, 118 ICMC experts in Greece supported UNHCR and national authorities to respond to the international protection needs of nearly 95,000 newly arrived refugees and migrants, one-third children.

ICMC experts assisted UNHCR to register uprooted people arriving in Greece, improve reception conditions, and develop fairer, faster asylum procedures. They provided information about the asylum process and supported documentation procedures.

ICMC experts assessed the protection needs of children on their own and other vulnerable people to decide a course of action in their best interests and prioritize placements. ICMC assisted UNHCR, in coordination with the European Asylum Support Office, in relocating unaccompanied children to EU Member States as part of an agreement to protect vulnerable asylum seekers.

Since detention is a core policy of Greek authorities to address irregular migration, ICMC personnel supported UNHCR efforts to improve detention conditions and prevent arbitrary detention. An ICMC deployment to the Ministry of the Interior helped facilitate access to protection for stateless persons.

ICMC personnel strengthened refugee integration efforts across Greece. An advocacy expert worked with the Racist Violence Recording Network to respond to xenophobic violence.

After the fire in Moria camp on the island of Lesvos, ICMC experts helped UNHCR provide asylum seekers with shelter and essential items.

CHURCH NETWORKING

In a year marked by the COVID-19 pandemic, ICMC networked with Catholic Episcopal Conferences and Catholic-inspired organizations to promote intensified action and advocacy to serve and protect uprooted people.

A CATHOLIC-INSPIRED PANDEMIC RESPONSE

As the pandemic emerged and spread, ICMC highlighted COVID-19’s disproportionate impact on uprooted people and called for solidarity and empathic action. An ICMC reflection on 18 March urged national member organizations and individual Catholics to show mutual care by adopting preventive measures and supporting migrants and refugees.

In April, ICMC launched a pandemic response webpage and held a webinar on the disastrous effect of COVID-19 on displaced populations. ICMC stressed that treatment and vaccines, once developed and approved, must be accessible to refugees and migrants. The webinar reported on Catholic-inspired action and ICMC’s continued efforts to serve and protect uprooted people in the midst of the pandemic.

ICMC worked closely with the Vatican’s COVID-19 Commission, created in March, at the initiative of Pope Francis, to build a healthier future rooted in care for the whole human family. ICMC also has been involved in analyzing the pandemic’s impact on the world of work and workers, including those forced to migrate in search of work.

PROTECTION FOR FORCIBLY DISPLACED PERSONS

An ICMC webinar for the World Day of Migrants and Refugees explored how displacement affects families. The event included panelists from Episcopal Conferences in India and Burkina Faso, ICMC’s Deployment Scheme and program in Jordan, and the Secretary General. An ICMC blog post highlighted the benefits of migration by looking at ICMC involvement in refugee resettlement to the United States and the vital contributions migrants make, particularly as front-line and essential workers.

ICMC contributed to the new Vatican resource Pastoral Orientations on Internally Displaced People, which aims to equip the Church to serve people uprooted within their home country.

ICMC and its national member organization in Burkina Faso launched a program to protect internally displaced children in the North of the country through schooling, healthcare, psychosocial support, and assistance with vital documentation.
In 2020, three prominent Cardinals urged the Church in Europe to work together to open new paths to a dignified future for refugees living in camps in Greece. They called on the Catholic Bishops' Conferences in EU member countries to advocate with their respective governments to set up humanitarian corridor programs. Such programs offer safe and regular admission pathways that complement traditional resettlement programs led by governments.

Their letter highlighted Pope Francis' example of welcoming, in 2016, refugee families living in reception camps in Lesbos, Greece.

With their appeal, the Cardinals included guidelines from the Community of Sant'Egidio outlining a process for the Episcopal Conferences to work with the Greek government and respective national governments to establish humanitarian corridors.

ICMC is deeply grateful to all its donors for their trust, support, and commitment to our common mission of protecting and serving uprooted people wherever they are and regardless of their status.

A variety of donors funded ICMC’s work during 2020. Government and multilateral funding covered a significant percentage of ICMC’s operational and advocacy programs. This funding was complemented by contributions from ICMC national members and Vatican offices as well as Catholic foundations.

Private donors made a crucial contribution to help migrants and refugees restore their lives with dignity and hope through ICMC’s work. In 2020, the ICMC, Inc. Development Office in Boston, U.S., was supported by 10,725 individual donors who gave 19,414 gifts. To all of them, we are deeply grateful.

ICMC acknowledges the contributions of the 1951 Founders’ Circle, a group of donors who made a commitment of USD 1,000 or more during 2020. ICMC is deeply grateful to all its private donors for their support as well as for their prayers and partnership, without which we could not carry out our mission. For more information and a full listing of 1951 Founders’ Circle donors, please visit ICMC.net/2020.
